Conference Theme

“The Spirit of Community: Academics and Practitioners Collaborating in Research, Teaching and Service to Improve our Future”

The 2018 MAM conference theme is inspired by the first nonstop solo transatlantic flight made by Charles Lindberg in a single engine airplane named “The Spirit of St. Louis.” The airplane was a result of the collaborative efforts of managers, designers, engineers, mechanics, and supporters working together for the same goal. Likewise, academics, practitioners, civic and community leaders must collaborate to enhance our research, teaching and service and make it relevant and meaningful. Working together, we can improve our communities and become more competitive in the current and future global economy.

Submission Deadline: Monday, June 25, 2018

MAM welcomes collaborative paper sessions, professional development workshops, symposiums and other sessions related to the theme as well as other business and management topics. Submit your research papers, symposia proposals, professional development workshop proposals, theme showcases, short papers, and other creative works. Go to the website www.midwestacademyofmanagement.org for more information and submission guidelines.
